This list does not even begin to give credit to all those who help make the publication of the Dodo possible. The Dodo is called "A Cadet Publication for Cadets." If this is to remain true, the Dodo must draw its material from the Cadet Wing itself. To be specific, if you have an idea of something you think would be suitable for the Dodo mention it to one of the staff. The same goes for criticisms. The Dodo is published for circulation solely among cadets and as such it will be written in accord with your wishes as you express them to us.

THE Dodo SPACEMATE

To have as lovely
a girl as Miss Sylvia Jeans is the first Spacemate is never fortunate. An art major and a junior at Lorenzo, Sylvia is as beautiful and healthy Coloradan as ever.
To meet her is a shock! Well ... that's the re-learned old man in fifties who seems to have a pretty concrete idea.

A Day in the Life of a Cadet VI

"By the left flank ... Harch!" came the command, and the JOD looked on in horror as C flight wiped out the shoes of the 20th squadron base file. I walked away in disgust as the JOD and the two NCOD's dove into the melee. We had gone through three squadron commanders this month, and tied for 24th in the drill comp ... but this morning my mind was on the 14th in a series of A-Hall Lectures, to be followed by the usual standby SAMI, parade, IRI, special meeting with the Commandant, noon meal formation, etc. "Gentlemen, that is to say, we are all gentlemen, are we not? But to my major premise for today, the influence of cute little humming birds on the design of (adjusts glasses for emphasis) war planes ... Somehow his silky voice didn't fit the stern emphasis, and it disturbed my sleep. When I arrived back in the squadron area, I met the crying Squadron Commander, wearing his Class III boards. As next in line my first act was to chug a Lavoris cocktail.

I knew it would be a long IRI when we were fallen in. We were the only squadron on the terrazzo, and a doolie in the front rank started to laugh. His element leader nudged him with his rifle butt and he slid silently out of my peripheral vision. The AOC forgot his gloves and went back for them, and four more doolies and a second classman in a body cast passed out. The other squadrons in the group were growling loudly. It was first call for lunch.

The parade was a complete success until someone began to chant something about food. The Comm dismissed us on the field. I went dejectedly to my room.

OCTOBERFEST - A festival of Germanic origins still celebrated in Bavaria and the Schwartzwald sections of Germany. It normally provides an outlet for the built-up tensions of the harvest or fall season in a jovial feast while still maintaining a modicum of decorum.

Let us return once again to those thrilling days of yesteryear.....

Through the auspices of the Cadet Wing a chance to relieve a few of the tensions of the fall season while still preserving that ever important modicum of decorum (coat and tie) is being made available to the upperclasses at the Broadmoor International Center following the Notre Dame game. Refreshments will be served and background music supplied by two excellent polka bands. This affair must of course in no way be related to past activities which might seem to have been of a similar nature but taken only at its face value. Face value, oh yes, about $3 per cadet w/friend, one each, female, attractive.

THE DODD SPORTS SCOPE

Saturday looms as another day of decision in the '64 Falcons' bid for another outstanding season. Coming off one of the most thrilling and important victories in Academy history, the Falcons must continue their heroics to overcome another "top ten?" opponent; the University of Michigan. On defense Harkleroad's headhunters will have their job cut out for them in stopping the Bob Timberlake led Wolverine offense. The 6'4", 215 lb. quarterback returns along with the rest of '63's starting backfield and 18 other '63 letter winners. Soph speedster Carl Ward has already replaced one of last year's starting halfbacks. Timberlake is a threat both running and passing, while Ward is expected to add to an already imposing set of swift, solid running backs. All-Midwest end John Henderson (6-3, 185 and '63 Big Ten leading pass receiver) returns to snare Timberlake's passes along with Captain Jim Conley. The defense is headed by linebacker Tom Cecchini, one of the Big Ten's best. Michigan's biggest worry is in the interior line where mainly unproven players will be called upon. This should be especially to the Academy's advantage because this game is Michigan's season opener, whereas the Falcons have one game's experience under their belts.

The competition should not be so keen on the weekend following the Ann Arbor affair. The Academy's home season opens with Colorado State here on the third of October. The Falcons will be trying to once again give the Rams a nasty time, but last year's 69-0 margin may not be as easy to come by. Coach Mike Lude's forces have been improving steadily and should pose more of a threat than in the past, though they were soundly defeated by Wyoming 31-7 in their opener. 194 lb. halfback Norman Burkett raced 14 yards for CSU's lone tally. Burkett who averaged 6 yards per carry last season is the Rams' biggest threat to Falcon fortunes. The two teams are nearly equal in size. The Rams average 208 in the line and 190 in the backfield.

Coming now to the Falcon team, the line-up for Michigan should be almost identical to last Saturday's except for the absence of George Hanseth at tackle due to a knee injury. Despite the loss of one of our finest interior linemen, it seems apparent from the Washington game that the personnel and will are there. Given proper encouragement from the rest of us in the Wing, the will should remain with the personnel to carry the Falcons through the toughest, but greatest, season seen at the Academy.

Then there's the sadistic little girl who locks the bathroom door every night her father has a beer party.

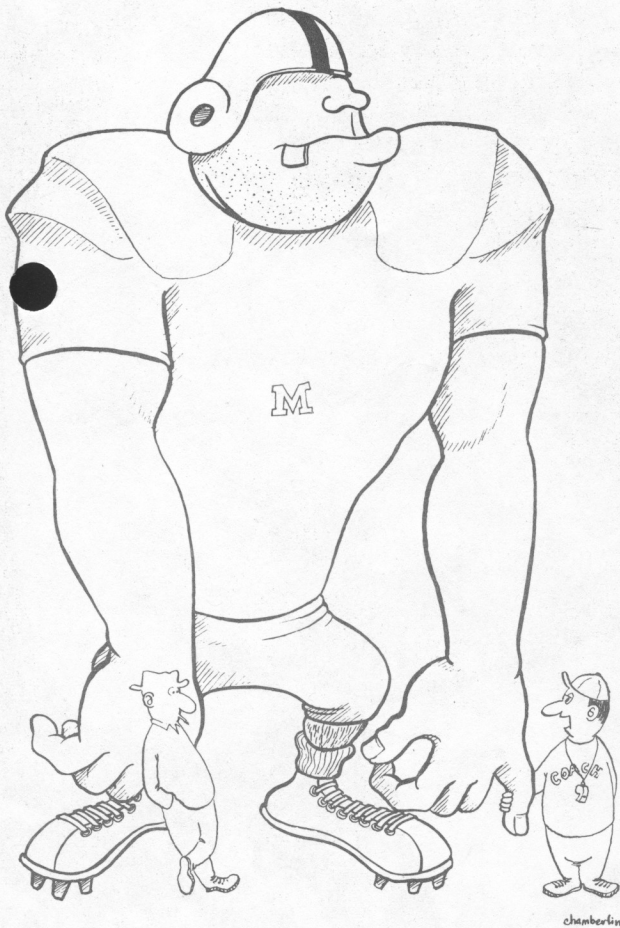

Visitor: "What's the name of this school?"

Student: "Sorry, I'm just a football player here."

"I say, damn your wonder drugs!"

SUNDIAL

"Wzinchowkavarsky here says he was in the band last year."

PLAGUE

ide: We are now passing the largest brewery in the state.
Student: Why?

"LET'S GO OUT AND DO SOME NIGHT CLUBBING!"

Judge (harshly): "you say this man stole your money out of your stocking?"

Coed: "Yes, your honor."

Judge: "Why didn't you put up a fight?"

Coed: "I didn't know he was after my money."
