COL. WHO

is coming?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir:

I wish to express my most heart-felt disappointment upon seeing the first issue of the DODO. In the first place I thought the picture on the cover was severely detrimental to the cadet image, but that was by far the most inconsequential objection I had to that nauseating piece of trash that you put out. You should realize that you are writing for a mature serious-minded audience, which has no interest in the trivia which you publish. The space would be much better utilized for some meaty articles on close order drill or bayonett tactics rather than making a mockery of our glorious institution.

Rad:

I just finished reading your first DODO. It was great--I barfed twice before I got to the Spacemate, and after that I was sick for a week. The picture on the cover was fab--typical of our class you might say. Your sports column also evidenced your usual mediocrity and lack of awareness of the facts. I have but one criticism, though; you didn't put in enough digs at the hurtin' dudes that run this place.

Keep up the good work!

Ed. Wait till you see this fishwrapper! It really smells!

The first home game of the season will pit the mighty Huskies of Washington against our Falcons. Defensively, Coach Jim Owens has one of his finest teams, missing only two starters from last year. The defense is built around Steve Thompson, a 6'5", 230-pound all-conference tackle and five lettermen defensive backs. Washington was the only team to beat UCLA last year and finished 4-2 in the tough Pacific-8.

A new offense has been installed, featuring twin flankers and no split end. The scoring punch is there with Tom Manke at Quarterback and Jim Cope at one of the flanker slots. The offensive line has adjusted well to the new offense and moves with authority.

But defense is also the key to USAFA's Team. The defensive unit is led by middle guard Ken Zagzebski, end Gerry Wyngaard, and linebackers Dave Allen and Bruce Burkey. If the Huskies decide to throw, they will have to reckon with the likes of Jim Thomason, Tom Zyroll, and Neal Starkey. Last year Air Force had only 9 interceptions, but they came up with three against Oklahoma State.

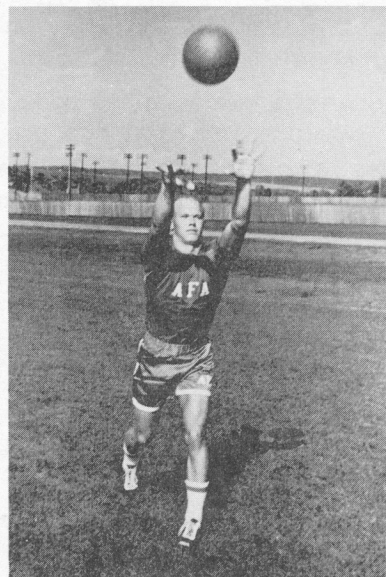

The Falcons trio of Quarterbacks can drive any defense nuts by picking the secondary apart with passes or by running the tricky option-pass at them. The front wall looks solid and can move under pressure.

All things considered, it should be a close game. Washington has never beaten Air Force and they are out for blood, but this is our first home game. If we all support the team, they can't beat 3,500 of us.

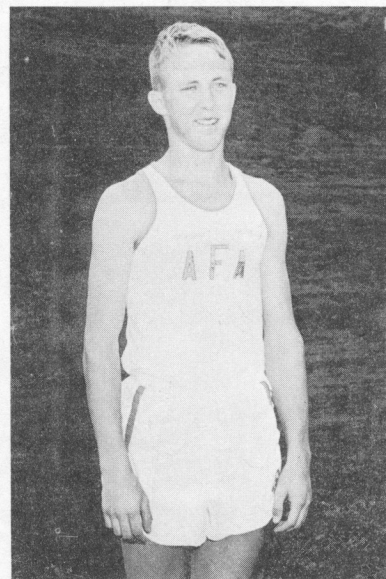

BEAT WASHINGTON

The Soccer team started the season with three tough games against the German Air Force, St. Benedict's, and St. Louis, and their home opener against the Coast Guard Academy promises to follow the same pattern. The team is anchored by All-League fullback and two-year letterman Dick Coe, halfback Duane Mroska, and wingman Scott Sonnenberg. Coach John Loewenberg had been concerned about but it has come around and the Falcons are ready.

Cross Country?

The AFA Cross Country team takes on Arizona and the Coast Guard in their first home meet of the season. The nucleus of the team is seniors Doug Everett and Terry Gruters, and junior Greg Wright. Other men to watch are Lindsey Parris, who set a new school record in the mile last spring of 4:15. and Mike Ryan who set a new 3 mile freshman course record last fall with a time of 15:55. The guys are ready so give them your encouragement.

CCA, all the way.

It started one morning as I staggered out toward reveille formation, full of excitement at the thought of a new day filled with chances to excell both militarily and academically, when a doolie came running up with a message from the C.Q. After correcting him in a gentle yet effective manner, I wiped the blood off the toe of my shoe while reflecting that I would have to do some more work on that kick of mine before I could expect to run in the chins of dools over six feet tall! I then decided that I'd better read the message he had delivered. It was from Col. Bore, the arch-fiend who had sent so many of my classmates to their doom. I was to report to his office immediately. It had hit the fan, I reflected coolly as I ran in blind panic for the firstie lot. Reaching my car, my courage came to me (when I realized that I had siphoned all of the gas out for the cross burning ceremony the night before. Ah, that was something - we ran out of wood, so we used dools for crosses) I decided that there were only 250 days left and I could stand on my head in a bucket of * for that long.

I returned to my room and attired myself in parades w/ sash, thinking that "one can never be too military". I walked slowly across the terazzo trying to quell the nausea that came over me as I passed the tour pad. What was it? Had he found out about the business that Mondo Choñotes and I were conducting after taps? Did he find out about the bar in the tunnels under A-Hall? Could it be the plan to blow up Fairchild Hall with materials stolen from the nuclear reactor? Was it the chem majors who were working on palluting the Academy's water supply with LSD? (to give us a more realistic view of life) Or possibly (horror of horrors) had he found out about THE PLOT? But he couldn't have, it was only a few of us that knew about it - a hundred or so of the best warped minds from each of the Academies and LHC, CWC and some sororities. A plan so devastating that even I could not bear to think of it. I pushed the thought from my mind and steeled myself for the dangers to be faced on the way to Col. Bore's office. I had to go through the AOC section and even at this time of the morning I was sure that there would be at least thirty pairs of beady^{eyes} watching every move I made. Each AOC would have a pen twitching in his right hand, instantly ready to note something in his yellow pad. I fearfully moved on and as I prepared to go up the stairs I met Sergeant Hottrain, who was carrying a box of bloody rags. I thought nothing of it until I noticed the name tag still pinned to one of the rags. They couldn't have gotten him - not my roommate - I bolted for the latrine

... and he, who came to USAFA with abilities far beyond those of the average hot dog, able to leap ...

SUBJECT: Pep Rally Ops Plan

TO: The World

1. Purpose: to provide some degree of organization and to integrate the military training system into the spontaneous display of Wing Spirit known as the Pep Rally.
2. Attendance: same as for Chapel.
3. Report: Form 27 will be submitted by each element sergeant to Security Flight not later than 5 minutes after release from quarters the following morning.
4. Schedule: Pep rallies will be held on each Wednesday night prior to a home game and on each Thursday night prior to an away game. If no game is scheduled, a practice Pep Rally will be held on Friday night. First call will be at 2215 and contact time will be at 2225. All activities will cease promptly at 2244:30 so that each cadet will have a reasonable amount of time to return to his room by 2245 taps (Note: no extensions of taps will be granted).
5. Marching: Squadrons will form up in their squadron areas facing South. Wing Sgt. Major will command.
6. Uniform: the uniform for the first group will be bathrobes w/shower clogs, towel, and soap. CG 2 will wear Parkas and skivies w/rain cap covers (no footgear is authorized). CG 3 will wear old khaki trou and shirts w/no buttons--combat boots will be worn. CG 4 will wear pajamas and carry blankets. CG 5 will wear Service Alpha and carry computer decks (Note: any uniform discrepancies resulting in indecent exposure will be reported to the Ethics Committee).
7. Each AOC is encouraged to attend and supervise his squadron.
