MOTIVATIONAL PIC

With less than 50 days left, '69 has set a new record: only 23% of the firsties are figmo. You can see this leadership in action each day by watching that 23% supervise the drill formations. After all, as one high-ranking sergeant said, "You never know when you might want to drill your crew chief!"

In an effort to scoop another publication we are sponsoring the first annual Group Sweathog Contest! That's right; each Squadron will select their worst representative of American Maidenhood and send it to the Dodo Staff. We will choose the Cream of the Crop for each Group and run their photos in the next issue or maybe for June Week. So get busy, guys- she's got to be out there somewhere!

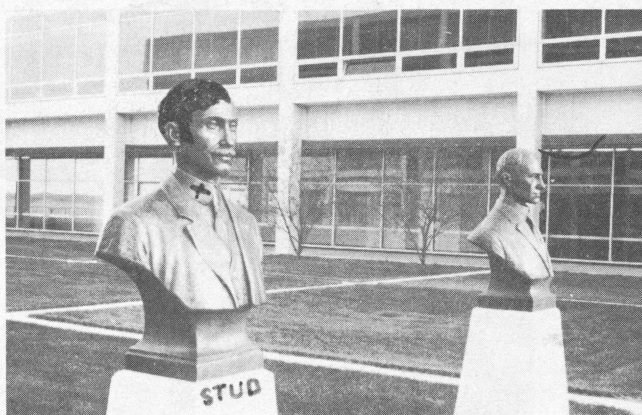

If anybody has any infamous miscreants in '69 that they feel would make a good All-Star, be sure to send his name and qualifications into 1st Gp staff by the middle of May. Note; this allows you enough time to earn the title yourself if you start now.

This issue is designed in part to prepare the Doolies for Hell Week. So that they'll be ready for it, we've run a feature story on what to expect.

Well, tunas, the countdown has begun, expanded privileges are here, and Spring is truly here (off and on). An anonymous author once wrote An Ode to Mitchell Hall Eggs

Their consistency is such
 That these, too, I shall abhor.
 I cannot eat your eggs today,
 For I love my stomach more.

We regret to inform the Wing that there is no Spacemate this issue, because there are no more good-looking girls in the area. However, if any of you do manage to turn one up, please have her drive around to First Group staff any evening after 6:45. Thank you.

The U.S. Military Academy at West Point is one of the world's oldest military schools and for many years it was the only engineering school in the United States. The U.S. Corps of Engineers, into which West Point's top graduates traditionally go, is still charged with much of the country's civil engineering works.

ESTIMATE OF THE SITUATION

"What force hath yon Indians mustered?"
BG. CUSTER, USA.

In Custer's saucy call for an Estimate of the Situation, he was unsuccessful in that fateful attempt. The results were drastic! (Ref: Hist 104). So that you of the 4⁰ won't be similarly caught off guard, come HELL WEEK, your striving DoDo has compiled a detailed Est. of the Sit.. One highlight of the week will be Special Inspections.

Notice C/4C "Z" as cleverly outwits his host by "turning the other cheek". His efforts did not go unnoticed, He is soon requested perform the ever popular Uniform Change.

Special Inspection:
" CAGE THOSE HAIRY EYEBALLS, SMACK!!!

Since no one can seem to decide on what for you to wear "Z" is often found in a wide assortment of wardrobe. Had the Denver Laundry been so "exacting" in their standards, situations like this would not come up. These trou were turned back 8 times. (Reminds you of a certain Cadet, doesn't it?)

So much excitement! Sometimes there is hardly time to waste.

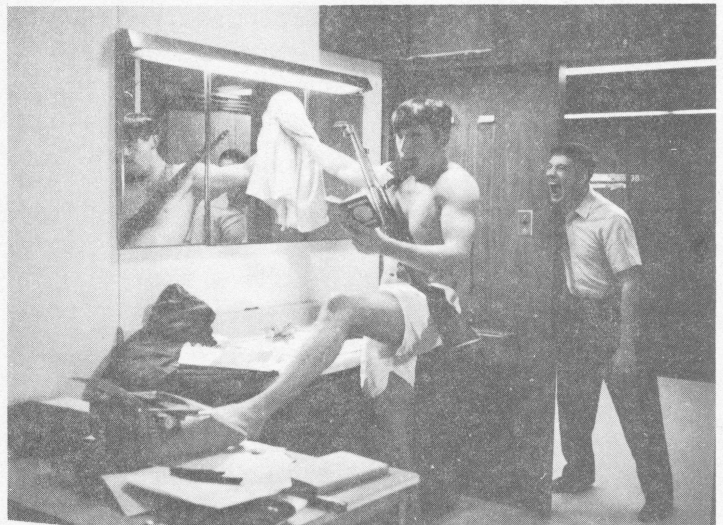

(Turn page at this time, please)

Uniform Changes:
" YOUR CLASSMATES SHOULD TELL YOU...
YOUVE GOT BAD TROU!"

Industrially, 4⁰ "Z": 1) Cleans mirror. 2) Holds soap dish in mouth. 3) Types Form 103 (drinking at Hockey Game). 4) Tries to brush up on Contrails he never knew. 5) Sweats. He is probably letting his mind wander to other meanings this week has. Such as, in Maryland, it's Clam wk, in Idaho, it's Green Onion week.

Switch gaze now to Morning Run. Some runs are wo/ rifles, etc. Tho, maybe this is another victim of Denver Laundry Ltd's swell new policy of impounding more than buttons. Maybe, '70 could pass on their lecture on filling out laundry slips, correctly.

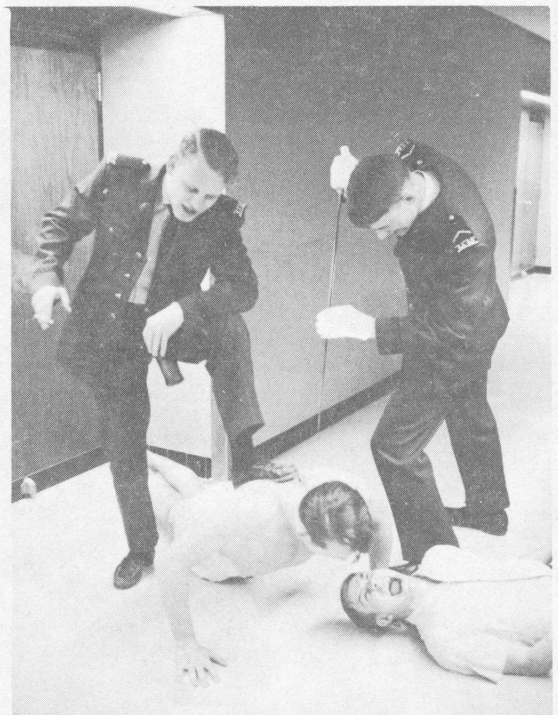

"You have a phone call in the CQ Shack"

At last, the evening shower. Put yourself in 4⁰ Z's position (ie. DROP!). While being told war stories by one host, another encourages him to "keep his butt down...", still another tries a different point of view. The purpose of HELL WEEK is

Morning Run:

THE CADET FORM LETTER

Cadets, notoriously short of time, have been known to write letters infrequently at best. As a public service, the DODO presents the Cadet Form Letter with a format so cretin-simple that any cadet can use it.

Dear (Mary, Susan, Betty, Mom, Other),

After hearing from you last (week, month, year, none of these), I have decided to write and tell you how things are here. I hope you are feeling (good, bad, Fred, Pete). I am feeling (good, bad, Gaye, Margret). Life here is flowing downhill as usual. Lately I've been had by (the law, the Dean, Sue, Others). The make lists came down and I made the Alpha Roster for the (first, third, fifth, seventh, eleventh) straight semester. I was thinking about you just the other day. You came to mind while I was (walking, walking and chewing gum, having a Special Inspection, sleeping in class, other). The weather here reminds me of you.

How are you making it (at home, at school, with Bill, with Jim) . . . the same old way? Rumors have been flying all around school. I've heard that you are (coming to town, engaged, willing, putting on weight). I have to run off now. Please write (when you can, soon, when you are free). I miss you very much. If I never see you again it will (crush me, kill me, not matter either way, be too soon).

(Love, Sincerely, Your Pal),

NAME: _____

(write or stamp in)

P.S. I love you (always, sometimes, when you are free, when you're reasonable, C & D of the above).

WING OPEN

Winter at the Academy brings not only velvet slopes and inclement weather formations, but also a lot of flying fists. Boxing is by far our most beloved spectator sport. Night after night the bleachers were filled with onlooking "arm chair" critics, analyzing the probable candidates for the all important Wing Open.

This year's Wing Open attracted many well-tested candidates. The top in every weight class were bidding for a chance to demonstrate their skill on the day of days. This year's scrappy group brought many surprises and "I told you so's". Early in the tournament, several of the favorites were eliminated by unknowns. But then again, past champs came through with flying colors to stamp their marks on the jaws of opponents. Highlighted by knockouts and upsets, sixteen men battled their way to the finals. Combinations of confidence, anxiety, and fear entered their hearts as the big day finally arrived.

The contestants for the 130 lb crown were Mike Chipman and Terry Michaelson. Terry, cheered on by a partisan crowd, took command from the beginning and fought an aggressive fight. Terry made quite a name for himself in being the only fourth classman in the finals and by winning such a decisive victory over a comparable opponent.

The 137 lb category matched up two defending champs, Louie Luallen and Rudy Aragon. Louie, fighting a very cool and collected fight, proved to be too much for Rudy. His strategy payed off in setting up his own defense against Aragon's "unique" style.

The 145 lb class matched James McKinley and Greg McKenna. The first round and a half showed the fighters to be closely matched. However, McKenna caught McKinley with a few good punches that set him back in the second round. Before the round could end, the referee called the fight and gave McKenna a TKO.

In the 152 lb class, Tim Sharky took on Hank (Happy Go Lucky) Kaiser. Happy Hank, inspired by a sign hanging from the ceiling which read, "Killer Kaiser", came through with a unanimous decision over his opponent. Hank, with his deceptive personality of warmth and friendliness, proved to be a master of the sport.

Dorsey Battles, in the 160 lb class, was beaten by a quicker Denny Adams. Both men fought a skillful fight with Adam's speed and endurance being the deciding factors.

Probably the closest match of the evening was fought in the 167 lb class. Matching Doug Mang and Mike (Charlie) Brown, the fight showed both ability and stamina. At several times during the fight, the bout could have gone either way. However, Mang weathered the storm and was able to bring home the honors.

In the 177 lb class, we saw a fight which many thought to be the outstanding fight of the evening. Dick Rivers took on 3-time champ Buzz Dyre. However, Dyre's ability and experience proved to be too much for his game opponent. Neither fighter was slow to start the action, and both landed their share of punches.

Probably the most anxiously awaited fight was between John Vanderpoel and Ken Little in the heavyweight class. Both were defending champions in this weight class. Ken Little, with his lightening speed and iron punches, put the skids to any thoughts of victory that his opponent might have had. What started out to be a close fight ended with Vanderpoel on his back. The knockout which came in the second round was very decisive, to say the least.

This concluded the annual Wing Open Boxing Championships. No one in the stands was disappointed. Congratulations to the winners and the losers for fights well fought.

Air Force Approves ROTC for Women

The Air Force has opened its college ROTC program for women who are interested in becoming officers in the Air Force.

Beginning this fall at selected universities, women will be offered the same two-year commissioning program now given for male students.

At first, three universities will have the program but more are expected to be added in the near future. Those already selected are: Ohio State University; Auburn University and East Carolina University.

The coeds must have two years of college remaining at either the undergraduate or graduate level and must attend a six-week training course at an Air Force Base prior to entering the program. Other requirements are to achieve a qualifying score on the Air Force Officers Qualifying Test and meet the physical standards required of a WAF officer.

The women will be entitled to the same benefits afforded male cadets in the two-year program, including a $50 monthly allowance while enrolled in Air Force ROTC.

ONE DAY IN THE Barber Shop...

The ~~Best~~ Dirty Deal of the Day

the Denver Laundry

Yes, this time the skulking screw goes to none other than your friend and theirs, the Denver Laundry! These sincere, kind fellows have always done a miraculous job (like turning pajamas into paper and reducing shirts so they fit your 3 year old niece), but recently the crew has outdone itself. In First Group alone, 158 bags of laundry were returned unprocessed (those old shirts get pretty rank after two weeks). The reasons ranged all the way from torn sheet to no separate tag with formal shirt (they might try telling us about it first) to wrong color sock net and too many u-trou! And did you notice that they still got paid for doing (or not doing, like a government subsidy) our laundry. Congratulations, Denver Laundry, for a consistent job well done!

if she doesn't give it to you, get it yourself!

"my wife told me to write
my Congressman"

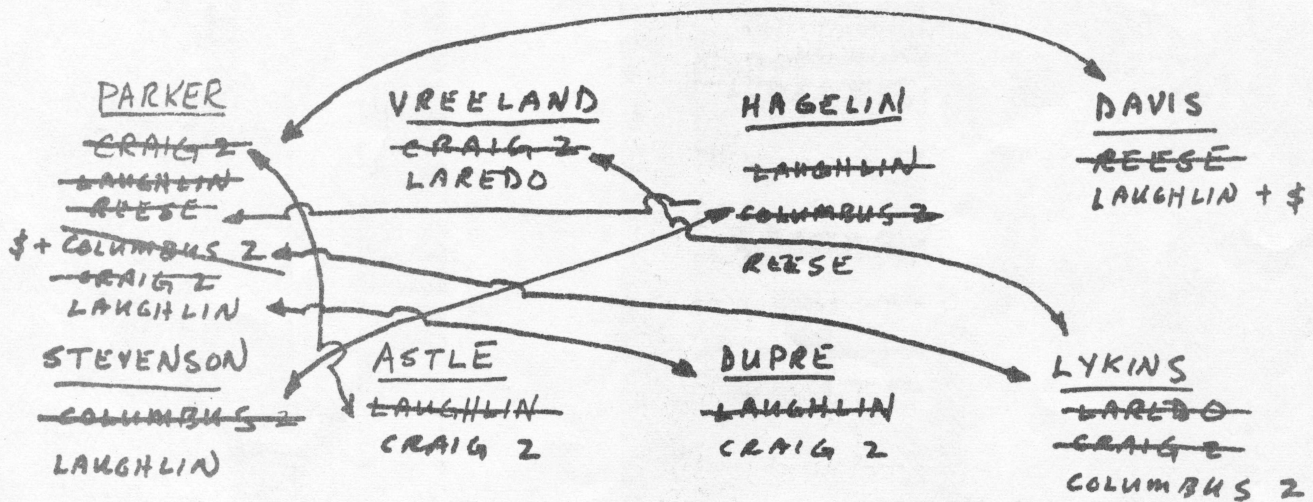

"I told her what I'd do about the balance of payments, ^{our laundry} urban renewal and our public school system. And that's when she told me what to do."

Maybe she has something there. After all, getting her to accept your ideas isn't the same as convincing the right public official. If you want your Congressman, Mayor or Councilman to know what you think, tell him. In writing.
