EDITORIAL

Well turkeys, this issue could best be called the French fry. You've doubtlessly already ogled the rest of the mag in search of [redacted] shots, so I'm sure you know what I mean.

Of course, none of the lampooning is meant (too) personally. I say that in case Joney baby happens to get ahold of a copy of this rag. I should also say that I don't think 200 years of tradition, unhampered by progress, is about to be dumped in favor of one li'l ole girl. But nice try, sweetie. It's just that no one on the DODO staph is above getting a girl while she's down--hence, the French fry.

A couple of remarks about Earth Day: First, I think it's fitting that a conference on pollution was held at the site of Colorado's only multi-million dollar, man-made environmental disaster. Congrats, Retcher.

Secondly, roll was taken at the 18th hole at Eisenhower. Those of you who missed it, be sure and sign the CAS report.

That's gonna have to be all for now--the OIC's coming, and I don't have late lights.

Hookus

P.S. An afterthought--did they really schedule Earth day a day early so they could cancel T-league intramurals again instead of M-league? An old proverb says 犬=能食其肉, which is roughly translated to say, "M-league consumes it again."
