Wee Wee Monsewer -

I was just inspired by a new novel "As The Stomach Turns" written by my poison-pen pals in Mitchell Hall. It's too bad that their poison-pens aren't as effective in their hands as they are in the soup bowls. Hats off to the dispensary for their recent discovery in the field of medicine. They have discovered the cure for the rare Mitch's Ptomaine Flu: Take 2 aspirin, get plenty of rest, drink lots of water, and if you are still alive at the end of the week come back for a check-up. Hats off, again, to boys in Support who did such a fine job on the pictures in the last Issue. It takes know-how to turn a delicious picture of J. I. Saint-John into a vast blob of blue ink.

Who will lead us to new plateaus of honesty, integrity and virility now that our beloved Gen G. has gotten another one of them there sparkly things for to go on his shoulders? On where is King Coyle when we need him? Come to think of it, where is King C. when we don't need him? I'm sure whoever the new Comm is, though, that Wingstaph will be more than willing to give him a small, but rewarding, portion of their vast powers. It's always safe to give him the feeling that his job in M. Hall is worth something after all. All you 2^o's be sure to keep your shoes shined and haircut for the Whoops and Middies when they come. At least that will give them something familiar to associate with. Did you ever notice how they bring their skis out here and all the 2^o's take out there is a can of shoe polish, butch-wax and their quasis.

Hats off, once again, to the great guys up in Counseling and Scheduling. Without the 3 GRs on the same day and 2 next day, where would be the thrill and glory of competition? I think we all agree they are already doing a fine job on the agony of defeat. Keep up the good work. Seems to be some commotion out in the halls. A 3^o is giving another 3^o an SI for not having his shoes shined for the noon meal.

Did you hear about the 3^o who was found dead in the trash chute? Seems he didn't reflect the image of 74 and some superstitious European Exchange Student nailed a cross to his forehead and drove a wooden stake through his heart. He had grown-up believing that vampires don't reflect images or cast shadows so he took matters into his own hands to save his classmates. Will leave now with quote from a friend: "Why keep fire engines at USAFA since something has to reach critical temperature to burn and nothing is critical around here?" Keep smoking + pressing + sucking your forehead.

GAMES STAFFS PLAY!

BROUGHT TO YOU BY BIFF, BUFFY, JODY, & STU

Rules for RIP-OFF

Rip-off is a game to be played by two to forty players. There are a maximum of four teams to which the players are to be assigned by means of a "shuffle". Each team is allotted one plastic "honor rep", their playing piece, hereafter referred to as "the Man".

ROOMS

Each team is assigned a room, situated on one of the corners of the playing board. In their room they are issued $1000 worth of "high value property", consisting of stereo systems, albums, skis, rings, loose money, Playboys, etc., etc., etc. All of the teams money in the room is vulnerable to "Rip-off."

OBJECT

The object of the game is to end play with the most money "up the sleeve". As a player makes one round of play, from the base of the sleeve to the fingertips, he has the opportunity to make money by ripping off others, and when he reaches the fingertips he can return to the base of the sleeve, and put all the money he has won "up the sleeve", where the other players cannot touch it. Play ends when all game money has been deposited "up the sleeve".

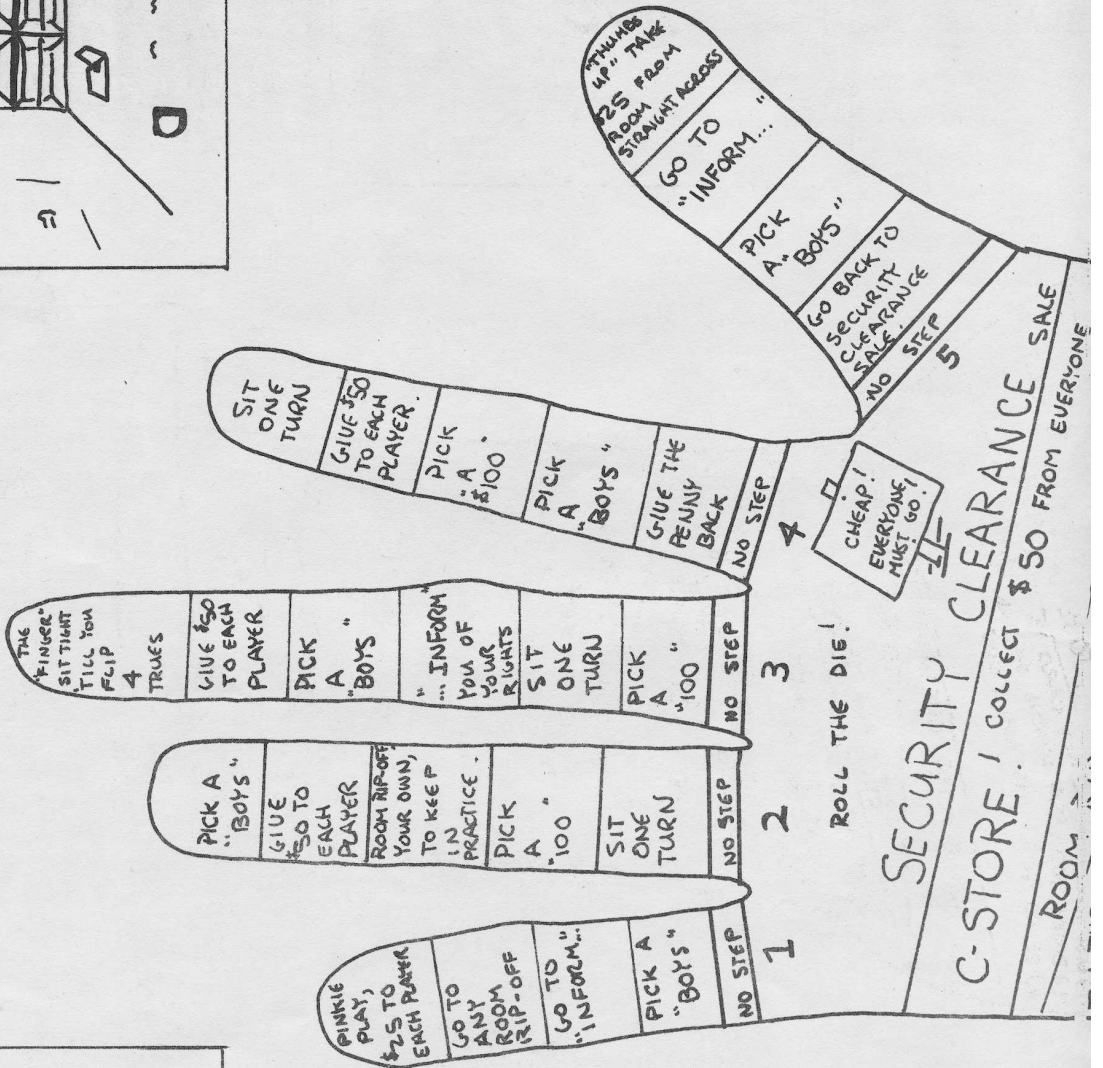

S.O.P.

Play starts with room A. Liberate a penny from an unsuspecting player, and a die from a Monotony game. Flip the penny, and call it. If it is what you called, the flip is termed a true, and you relinquish your turn to the player to the right. If the flip is "false", you advance one space and repeat the flip. Keep flipping until a true appears, stop play, and follow the instructions on that block. If you flip a true on your first flip next turn, do not repeat the instructions on that block. Upon reaching "Security Clearance Sale", roll the die. If the number is one through five, advance to the first space on that numbered finger and continue flipping. If you roll 6, receive your "Five-Finger Discount" and advance to the digit of your choice. When the tip of the finger is reached, the next false flipped advances you to the sleeve where you place your ripped-off merchandise "up the sleeve", where it is no longer vulnerable to rip-off.

SPECIAL PROCEDURES

the "Finger" if you land on the dastardly digit, you must continue play rotation as usual, with the exception that when you flip a true you continue flipping. A false aborts yours turn. After four trues (cumulative) have been flipped, your credibility is returned, and now a false is needed to get up the sleeve, and play resumes as normal.

"SAR" If you land in SAR, sit one turn in the in-processing cot, one in the middle, and one in the out-processing, after which you return to normal play trying to get up the sleeve.

UP THE SLEEVE

Room Rip-Off Whenever you are awarded a Room Rip-Off, be it realized that you must turn both your "Man's", and the Rip-Offee's "Man's" face away from the Rip-Offee's room before you rip it off. If you don't, and are caught, the Rip-Off is negated, and you return his money.

The play can end when all the room money is up the sleeve, or, when someone in the area inadvertently "blows the whistle", audibly, ^{loud} so that all the players hear it, at which time only those players with money accumulated than they started with continue the play. The first one to get in to the SAR and completely out-processed, wins. Or, the game may be so fascinating that you may wish to commandeer an alcove and carry on the game with real merchandise.

The problem of what to use for "toy" money has proven inconsequential to most cadets. Some prefer to use buttons from class shirts, which are found free and in their wild state throughout the Academy, while others prefer the realism of their friends property.

This game can provide many relaxing hours of enjoyment. It can also provide realistic cadet training. All this, if one basic rule is remembered.... Don't Cheat.
