MICKI KING - OLYMPIAN

Early last May, 1972 Olympic gold medalist Capt. Micki King had the distinction of being the first woman to instruct a physical education class at the Academy.

Currently serving in the Athletic Department as assistant business manager, she has been devoting a couple of mornings each week since May to teaching a senior elective class in diving.

Teaching diving is not new to the Munich three-meter diving champion. However, that first class last May was her first experience with an adult, all-male class and it seems to have been a rewarding experience for her as well as the cadets.

"I think all the guys in that first class were a bit curious when they learned I was instructing the class," she said. "But I don't think any of them doubted my abilities or credentials."

"I haven't felt any awkwardness in dealing with the cadets in the class. I've always had to train with men so I don't think there has been anything all that unusual for me. I've felt quite comfortable with the class.

"Some of the students had never done any diving and I've been pleased with the progress each group has made."

Captain King said she has been particularly impressed by the attitude of her students.

"They have done everything I asked and they have been truly interested in learning. I believe they trust what I tell them is right."

How did she think cadets would react to having a female instructor, especially when the woman had achieved fame in her field?

"I had an idea most of the cadets were looking forward to the class," she said. However, the cadets who signed up for the class in the Spring '73 semester didn't know Captain King was teaching the class.

"Had I known sooner, I think it would have been a drawing factor rather than a deterrent," says 2nd Lt. Breck Cunningham, a 1973 graduate and former captain of the Falcon gymnastics team. "I've followed her diving activities for a long time and it was a pleasant surprise to find her instructing the class."

Another '73 graduate and former gymnast, 2nd Lt. Bill Ritter, had a slight advantage in that he had already met Captain King and had previously done some diving under her guidance.

"When I signed up for the course I was really looking forward to the extra coaching from her," he said.

2nd Lt. Mark Prill, a two-year football letterman and 1973 graduate, walked into that first class not knowing who would be teaching. His saying he was "pleasantly surprised" is probably a bit of an understatement.

What about her ability as an instructor?

"The fact she is a woman has a positive effect," says Cunningham.

"It made me try harder to do what she has asked. She understands differences in ability and does what she can to vary training for different skill levels."

Prill says, "I think knowing who is teaching makes us work a little harder and I think everybody has been responding well to her."

"She is patient, but demanding and she knows how to teach diving," says Ritter. "I have the utmost confidence in her ability."

What about her achievements as a diver, especially her gold medal in the 1972 Olympics? "I find her to be a nice, down-to-earth person," says Cunningham. "She is not one to flaunt her medal and her ability."

After the initial surprise, Prill said he discovered she was "very personable."

"I was soon at ease. Her achievements don't get in the way of what she's doing."

A member of her class this semester is senior Don McMonagle, a pole valuter on the Falcon track team.

"The fact that she is an Olympic gold medalist and an expert in her field, gives her a lot of credibility," says McMonagle. "You have to have a lot of faith in her judgment. She's a great teacher and always keeps the class interesting."

Another class member this fall, senior Tom Green, echoed McMonagle's views.

"I really looked forward to going to the class," says Green. "That first day of class I couldn't even jump off the board properly, but Captain King was very patient and now I feel like I've really improved. She has a way of building up your confidence and making you execute dives you didn't think you could do."

About herself Captain King says, "I think of myself as being pretty ordinary."

Well, maybe. The cadets she has taught so far say she is normal, friendly and more than a capable teacher.

But just ordinary. Not quite.

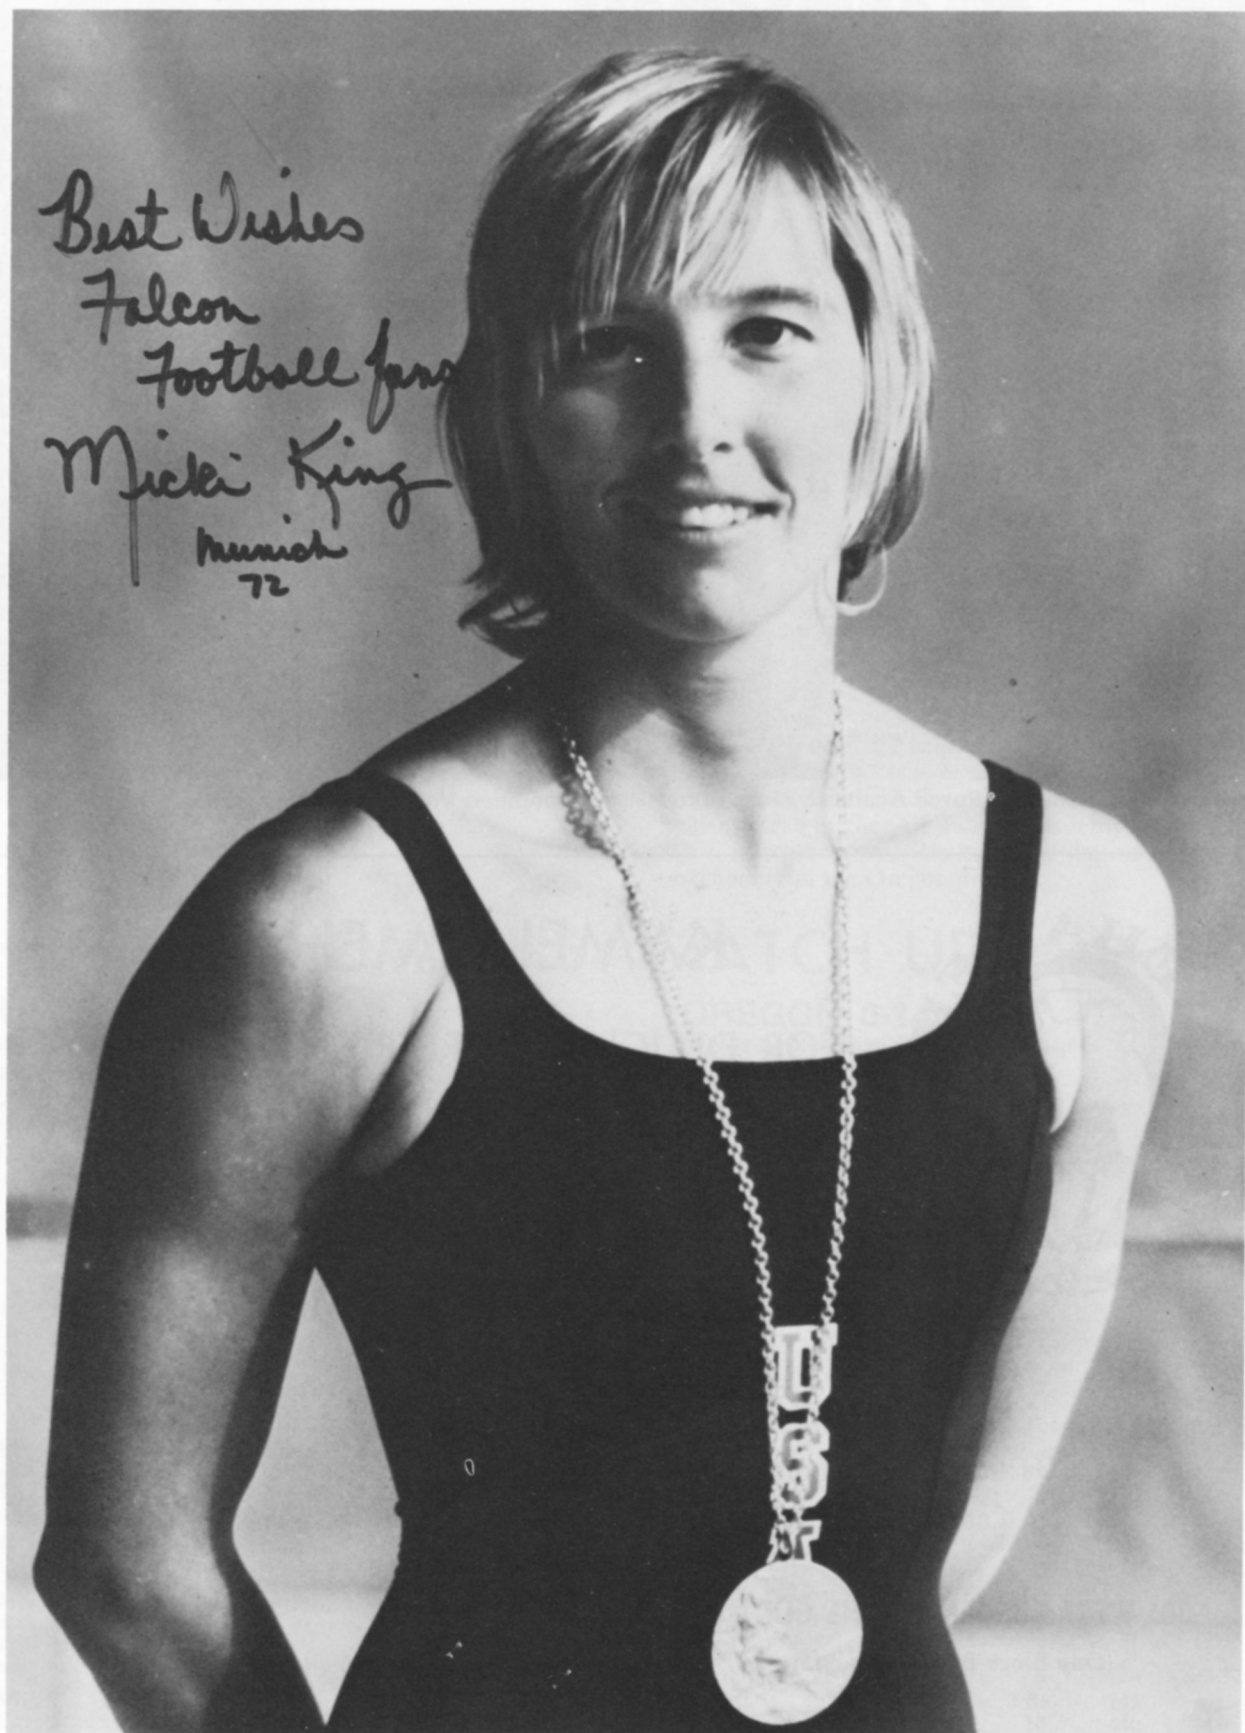

Lieutenant Ritter, perhaps, stated his feelings most appropriately and succinctly when he said:

"She's a nice lady."

Today's Game | AIR FORCE vs OREGON

By HAL BATEMAN
Air Force Sports Information Director

Once again the Air Force Academy is privileged to host two special groups today.

The nationally-famed Casper Troopers of Wyoming are making a return visit to Falcon Stadium and will perform at halftime. They have always staged an attractive show and today will be no exception.

Another greeting goes to the government employees who are here today. Your interest in Air Force football is greatly appreciated.

We would also like to extend a welcome to the members of the American Broadcasting Company television team who are sending this game to many sections of the nation as a regional telecast of the college football game of the day.

Finally, a welcome to our visitors from the University of Oregon. The Air Force-Oregon football series has always been a tough one, although the Ducks hold a 5-1-1 series edge.

Here are the scores in the series:

1959 at Portland
Oregon 20, Air Force 3
1962 at USAFA
Oregon 35, Air Force 20
1965 at Portland
Air Force 18, Oregon 18
1966 at USAFA
Oregon 17, Air Force 6
1969 at USAFA
Air Force 60, Oregon 13
1970 at Eugene
Oregon 46, Air Force 35

1971 at USAFA

Oregon 23, Air Force 14

The 1962 game also was on regional television and was the Falcon Stadium Dedication game. The 1969 contest also was a game of note since it will be remembered as the "Fog Bowl." In 1970, Oregon knocked Air Force out of the undefeated ranks in a game that was one of the top offensive shows in major college football history.

Oregon opened the season last Saturday, falling to nationally-ranked Arizona State, 26-20, at Eugene. The Ducks were 5-6 last season and as can be told by looking at the series results, have always been a tough foe for the Falcons.

Today's contest will be of particular interest to Air Force offensive line coach Spike Hillstrom, who graduated from Oregon in 1957 and was an outstanding offensive lineman for the Ducks. Hillstrom also was an outstanding high school coach at North Salem, compiling an excellent 37-10-3 record.

Players on the Falcon roster from Oregon include starting junior offensive guard Larry Fariss of Medford and sophomore offensive guard John Hazen of Lake Oswego.

Norv Ritchey, Oregon's athletic director, also has an interest in the Air Force Academy. A major in the Air Force reserve, Ritchey is a liaison officer for the Academy in the Oregon area.

STADIUM FACTS

For natural beauty, Falcon Stadium is hard to surpass. Built into the base of the Rampart Range mountains, the modern facility also is one of the most functional sports structures in the country.

The concrete structure, built in a natural bowl, has 49,068 permanent seats and can hold up to 50,000 spectators with additional temporary bleachers. There is one level of seats on the east side and three tiers of seats on the west, each serviced by two concession stands and restroom areas. All seats are within easy walking distance of the 9,610-vehicle capacity parking lot which surrounds the stadium on three sides.

The stadium is easily accessible from divided U. S. Interstate 25 and the Academy's Stadium Boulevard which leads directly to the parking lot. There is also ample parking space for 300 commercial busses, and a rail siding is located just a few hundred yards from the bowl for special trains.

FALCON SPOTLIGHT:

RICH HAYNIE

6-2, 193-pound senior quarterback from Florissant, Mo.

Two-year starter and offensive captain this year, Rich will probably hold most of the Academy total offense and passing records by the time he graduates. A strong thrower, he played 242 minutes as a sophomore and added 277 last fall. His first touchdown pass this season will give him the career lead with 26. His best game was against Arizona State last year when he threw for 332 yards and four touchdowns in the Falcons' upset victory. Rich was also the baseball team captain in 1973 but missed most of the season because of a knee injury. He was the most valuable player for the 1972 Falcon diamond squad, winning nine games. Majors in civil engineering.

MEET THE FALCONS

ART RATKEWICZ, 6-4, 223-pound senior offensive tackle from Madison, Ill. A two-year reserve starter who has had an excellent spring and fall and will probably be a regular this season. Played 140 minutes as a sophomore and added 51 last year. Possesses good quickness and is an excellent tactician. Majors in history.

LANCE WEBB, 6-1, 215-pound senior offensive guard from Springfield, Mass. One of the team's most experienced offensive linemen, he missed the last two games of 1972 because of a broken right leg suffered in the Army game. Will move back into a starting role this year after lettering as a starter last season and as a reserve in 1971. Majors in behavioral sciences.

PAUL DeHART, 6-0, 199-pound senior defensive end from Franklin, Ohio. The top returning defensive end, he earned his first varsity letter last fall as a reserve with 111 minutes of action. He had 15 tackles in 1972, and is being counted on to help fill a key position. Majors in management.

DENNIS COLLINS, 5-9, 172-pound senior cornerback from Washington, D.C. Started last season at cornerback, earning his first varsity letter with 195 minutes. He had 65 tackles, broke up two passes and was the top pass interceptor on the squad with four. Majors in behavioral sciences.

GREG SMITH, 6-2, 176-pound senior split end from Houston, Tex. Returning starter at split end who played 252 minutes last season, winding up as the second-leading receiver with 26 catches. Combines good hands with good speed and is excellent on sideline patterns. Majors in behavioral sciences.

"Universities dwell at the growing edge of knowledge," says the report of the Committee for the Future of the University of Oregon.

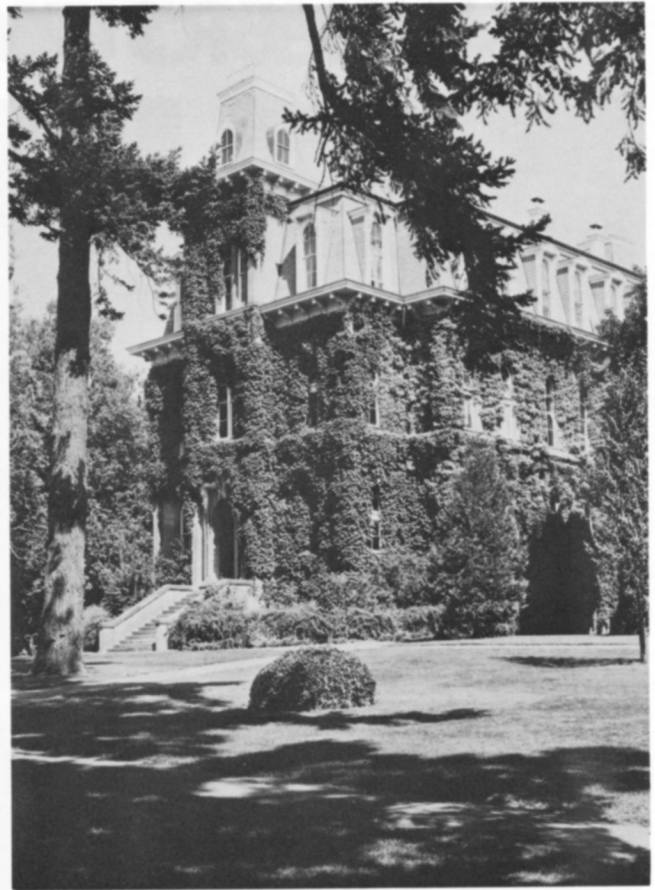

The University of Oregon is growing in both new and traditional areas of knowledge. It is a national center for study and research in a number of diverse fields. Its students have a choice of more than 5,000 courses offered through the College of Liberal Arts and nine professional schools and colleges.

Recent growth includes the establishment of the first new schools since 1920 — the School of the Librarianship, the only one accredited in the State, and the Wallace School of Community Service and Public Affairs, which already has a national reputation for its innovative curriculum. New centers have been established for volcanology, gerontology, leisure study and community service, and environmental studies. The University has begun a clinical services program in mental retardation, expanded its law center, added a new bio-social research facility, and created a statistical laboratory and computer center.

An institution which opened in 1876 with 177 students, five faculty members and one building, the University of Oregon is now the eighth largest community in Oregon with more than 15,000 students, 1,200 faculty, and several dozen buildings. Its campus includes the Institute of Marine Biology at Charleston, Oregon and Pine Mountain Observatory near Bend, Oregon. Last spring for the first time in the history of the University, a regular term of classes was conducted away from the main campus, at the Charleston institute, where summer sessions regularly attract 100 students each year.

Major discoveries and developments in both the social and physical sciences have become commonplace at the University of Oregon where students' participation in research gives them on-the-job training in the process by which knowledge is acquired. At the same time, the University maintains a strong tradition in the arts and humanities.

As it nears its 100th birthday, the University of Oregon is a place where original inquiry is the heart of the educational process.

HALFTIME ENTERTAINMENT:

CASPER TROOPERS

In the 1973 competitive season, the Troopers are traveling to contests on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, as well as to appearances in several midwestern cities, the Great Plains area, and the Rocky Mountain States.

The 108 member unit, from Casper, Wyoming, is marching this season with a 50 member brass section, under the direction of brass instructor Jack Meehan, and a 19-member percussion section under the tutelage of corps director and drum instructor Jim Jones.

Troopers retain part of their impressive 1972 musical repertoire and have written in several exciting new numbers for their presentation today.

Drum Major Mike DePaemelaere leads the corps off the line to the familiar and ever popular "Ghost Riders in the Sky." Colors Presentation is a beautiful, heart stirring rendition of "We Gather Together," sometimes called the Thanksgiving Prayer.

Production into concert is the traditional military bugle call, "Pay Day," properly titled, "Eagle Screams."

Troopers' concert this year is a new addition to the musical library; a moving piece called "Wedding Dance," from Hasseneh. Out of concert, the Casper Troopers play the famous "Black Saddle."

Visual support for the total Trooper program comes from the 38 member colorguard. Under the field direction of co-commanders Marian Emmons and Alana Beard, the color guard marches 25 flags and 10 rifles.

In competition, the silk section carries matched yellow and white flags, emblazoned with the crossed sabres emblem of the corps. The silks and rifles have long been renowned for their intricate maneuvers and breath taking tosses. This years' M & M program will continue the well earned tradition and reputation of the corps and the guard.

AFA MARCHING BAND

The United States Air Force Academy Marching Band has been hailed as the "World's finest military marching band."

This 100-piece musical organization contains the standard band instrumentation with the addition of the Academy's Drum and Bugle Corps. This combination of band and bugles is unique in the United States today. The thrilling sound produced is a direct result of special arrangements written by the band's own arranging staff.

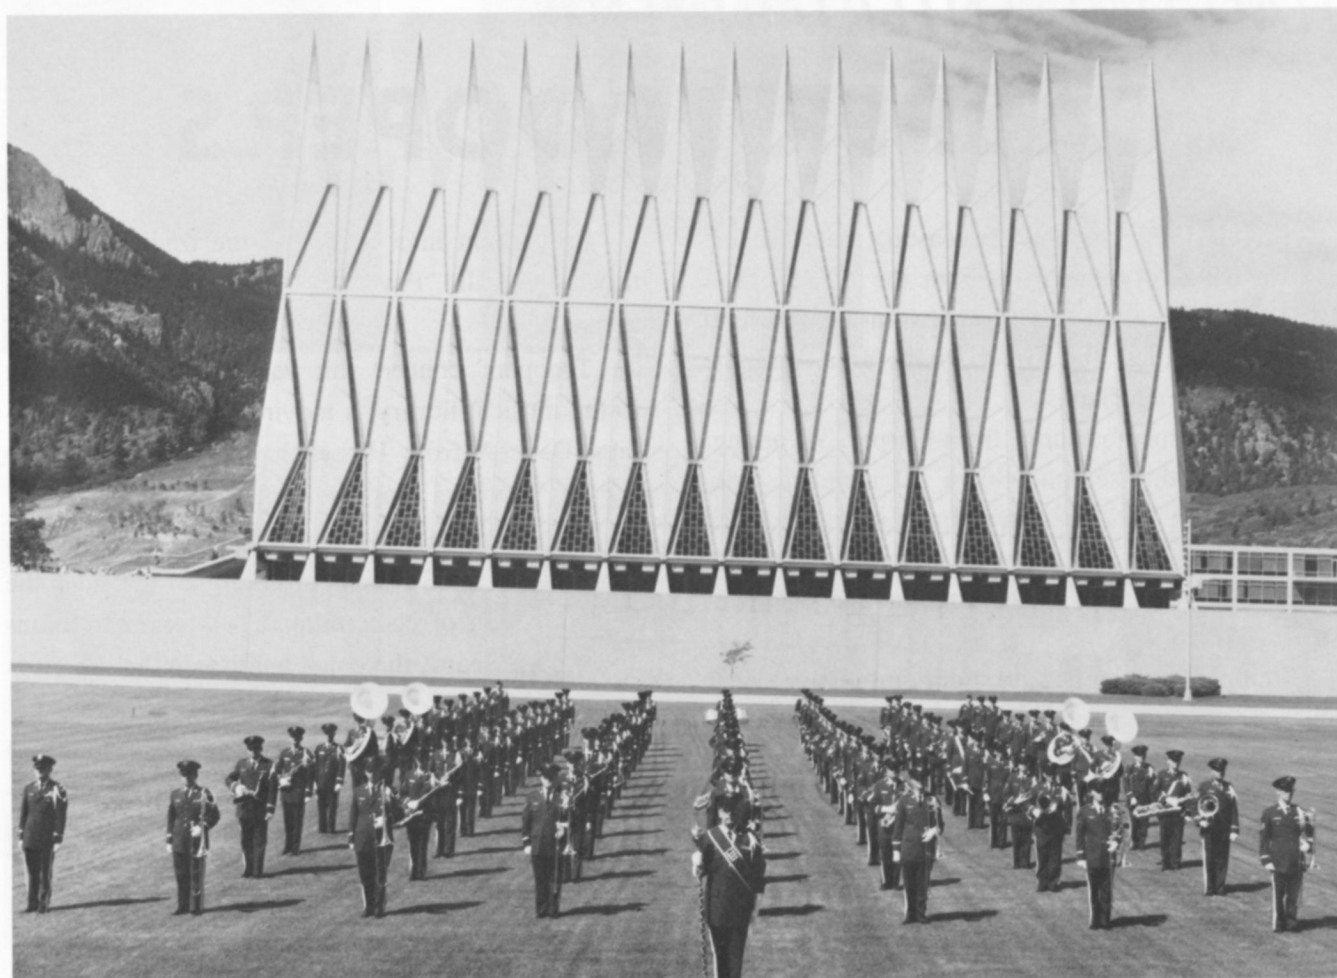

The Marching Band may be seen several times during the week performing at the cadet noon formation and frequently on Saturday morning as they participate in the formal dress parades of the Cadet Wing. They also appear at Academy football games and throughout the country in such national prominent functions as Presidential Inauguration Ceremonies, major Bowl Parades, pro football games and Music Educators' Conventions.

FALCONAIRES

The "Falconaires" jazz/rock ensemble, led by Senior Master Sergeant Chuck Gardner, take their name from the mascot of the United States Air Force Academy, a unit of the United States Air Force Academy Band. This organization provides today's music in its most exciting form. These 17 musicians display their unique talents in concerts and stage band clinics nationwide.

The "Falconaires" have recorded their own musical arrangements in Hollywood, California and Las Vegas, Nevada. Most of their music is written by their own arranging staff.

This stage band performs for concerts and cadet dances at the Air Force Academy as well as performing for television, radio, colleges, and high schools. They have performed with Bob Hope, Doc Severinson, Johnny Smith, Peanuts Hucko, Joni Sommers, Louie Bellson, Roy Burns, Clark Terry, and other notables too numerous to mention. Doc Severinson says, "I rate the 'Falconaires' as one of the best today."

Weather permitting, the "Falconaires" will perform several musical presentations prior to kick-off of each home game.

GO FALCONS

(Fight Song)
Words by Cadet R. L. Counts
Melody by Cadet J. C. Vance Arrangement by
A/1c H. Merrick, USAFA Band
Rev up and go Falcons to the fight,
For our spirit is high
Gear up and go Falcons surge ahead
On the field as in the sky;
For you will see silver and blue,
Reign supreme upon the field;
We will prove that we can't be beaten,
For the Falcons never yield.

THE BIG YELL

(Lots of noise, building up)
FIGHT!

(Quiet, raise hat with right hand.)

THE AIR FORCE SONG

Off we go, into the wild blue yonder

BALANCE KEY FACTOR FOR CROSS COUNTRY

Once again, balance will be a key factor for the Falcon cross country team. Coach Arne Arnesen lost several top runners, including Ernie Maravilla, last season's number one man, but has five returning lettermen, including senior team captain Bill Frank.

Other returning lettermen include seniors Mike Cook, Dave Hogleund and Jim Koster, as well as junior Jim Blissit. Koster did not compete last season but Blissit, Frank and Hogleund all ran as the number two man at one time or another during the 1972 season, when the Falcons were 3-3.

Arnesen is hoping that a trio of juniors, plus a pair of sophomores will push the lettermen for the top positions on the team, adding the balance the squad will need if it is to be a successful season. The juniors include Pat Rupel, Bill Bennett and Harry Mathis while the two sophomores are Jeff Ford and Jeff Miller.

As was the case last season, the Falcons probably won't have any individual stars but will rely on team work and spirit to post a winning season.

An appearance in the tough Indiana Invitational highlights the schedule while meets against Wyoming, New Mexico, Adams State, Colorado State and Southern Illinois promise to make it another exciting year.

WATER POLO BOASTS STRONG SCORING PUNCH

With the top five scorers returning, including All-American candidate Ben Phillips among the 12 lettermen, prospects for 1973 appear excellent.

Besides Phillips, the Falcons have a solid corps of three experienced seniors in team captain Kelly Kemp, Rick Pilling and Jim Struble.

Pilling, the top defensive player on the squad the past two seasons, showed impressive scoring punch in 1972 with 53 points, second only to Phillips.

Kemp was the third-leading point producer with 47 and led the Falcons in assists with 28. Struble finished just behind Kemp with 44 points.

Junior Phillips, of course, is the key to a successful season. The overwhelming top scorer his first two years, he must score consistently for the Falcons to be a threat. He is the man the team depends on in clutch situations.

Four sophomores will be expected to pick up where they left off last year in strong freshmen showings. Bill Monroe finished fifth in scoring for 1972 with 28 points while Don Greshman and Jim Hogue contributed 25 and 24 points, respectively. Hogue also had the second best shooting percentage behind Phillips.

Goalie Walt Heidmous has a year's experience behind him and should improve on his 8.1 goals allowed average his freshman year.

A strong crop of freshmen will add depth to the team and possibly challenge some of the regulars for starting positions. Goalie Heidmous' young brother, Jeff, joins the team as a field player as does Jon Burgess. Junior Tom Calhoun will back up Heidmous in goal along with freshmen Ralph Tollie and Grant Anderson.

KICKERS SEEK SIXTH STRAIGHT WINNING YEAR

Led by junior All-American Len Salvemini and senior team captain John Brockman, the 1973 soccer team will be seeking a record-setting sixth straight winning season under coach Hank Eichin.

Salvemini has scored 30 goals in his first two seasons, and will break the Falcon career scoring record with his second goal of 1973.

Last year's defense yielded just 16 goals while the offense, sparked by Salvemini, tallied 47 as Air Force posted a 7-4-1 mark. The Falcons will be defending their 1972 Rocky Mountain Intercollegiate Soccer League title as well as attempting to secure their second straight NCAA tournament bid.

Twelve lettermen, mostly in the defensive corps, are returning, led by All-Far West fullback Brockman. Assisting him at that position will be Jack Shine and Tracy Stephens. Both played important roles during the past campaign.

Eichin will be looking for added scoring punch from a new forward line and system of attack. Salvemini will again be the key, but is expected to get a big assist from veterans Paul Narzinski, Gary Allard, John Zimmerman and Dave Rusk.

Over the past few seasons, Air Force has played some of the toughest schedules in the country. During that time they have managed to record their first victories over service academy rivals, Army (1971) and Navy (1972) and will be looking for their first series sweep in 1973.

In addition to playing each of their Rocky Mountain league foes twice, the booters will also host a new team on the schedule, MacMurray, and renew old acquaintances with South Florida and Michigan State.

Air Force vs. New Mexico, Sept. 29

STEVE BRADSHAW, Defensive End (51)

Steve Bradshaw, New Mexico's candidate for All-Everything at defensive end, took aside a member of the press at UNM's Photo Day back in August.

"I just thought you'd like to know," he said in toothy grin, "we're going to win the WAC this year."

Bradshaw then quietly walked off smiling to pose for his umpteenth picture diving on top of a football or grimacing menacingly at a photographer's little black box camera.

Bradshaw has arisen to celebrity status in this his senior season. Coaches at New Mexico have always been aware of the tremendous effort that the Farmington, N.M., native puts into football and the intense manner in which he plays. But only late last season did the fact seem to catch up among Lobo fans. It now is big sport at New Mexico to watch the "Bad Dude" at work at defensive end.

"The guy is everywhere," one opposing coach lamented last fall. "He seems to know where you're going with the ball. And if he isn't knocking the whey out of a ballcarrier he's sure taking somebody out of the play."

Lobo head Coach Rudy Feldman is Bradshaw's biggest fan.

"Steve may be, pound-for-pound, the best defensive end in the nation," Feldman said earlier this summer. "He has excellent mobility and the desire to play his very best. You can say he may be the best defensive player I've had here."

Defensive line coach Del Wight says more.

"Steve Bradshaw is the fightin'est, doggin'est, toughest football player we've got," he says. "He can be knocked completely out of a play, but he'll get up and go after the ballcarrier anyway. He wants in on the action."

Bradshaw has put on ten pounds over his playing weight from last year — he's up to 205 pounds now. But at that weight he can hold his own with any offensive lineman in the Western Athletic Conference.

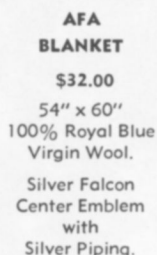

"I feel that if I fire out fast I can beat any guy, no matter how big he is," Bradshaw has said. "It's a matter of being quick off the line. I have to take advantage of my quickness. I may not be able to beat the other lineman, but if I can at least hold my own, I've done my job. There is no way the runner can come where I am."

Bradshaw more than holds his own. He was New Mexico's leading tackler last season with 104 tackles, seven fumble recoveries, ten deflected passes and seven sackings of the quarterback for a loss.

"This can be a really good year for us," Bradshaw explains. "The younger players are pushing the older guys and we have better team enthusiasm than at any time since I've been here."

"I really think we'll win the WAC."
